

I listen to K-LOVE, a national and regional broadcaster with many local translators used to spread the signal across the nation. KLOVE is important to our local community because it provides content not available on other stations. Christian rock and pop music is not often played by other stations. They also provide local event updates for our community. If I could not listen to KLOVE due to a LPFM broadcaster providing other programming, I would no longer have access to quality Christian rock music. There are countless bands I have been exposed to -- and then bought CDs or attended concerts -- because of this exposure. I believe that KLOVE is in the public interest.
